

University College London Hospital Visit
Thursday 5th June, 1-3pm

We invite you to visit University College London Hospital, a central London teaching hospital which carries out both elective and trauma orthopaedic surgery. The visit will include a site tour of key orthopaedic areas and a chance to meet with essential orthopaedic staff to ask any and all questions, share information and network with likeminded colleagues. We will also arrange for one or two interesting lectures to support the visit, details to follow.

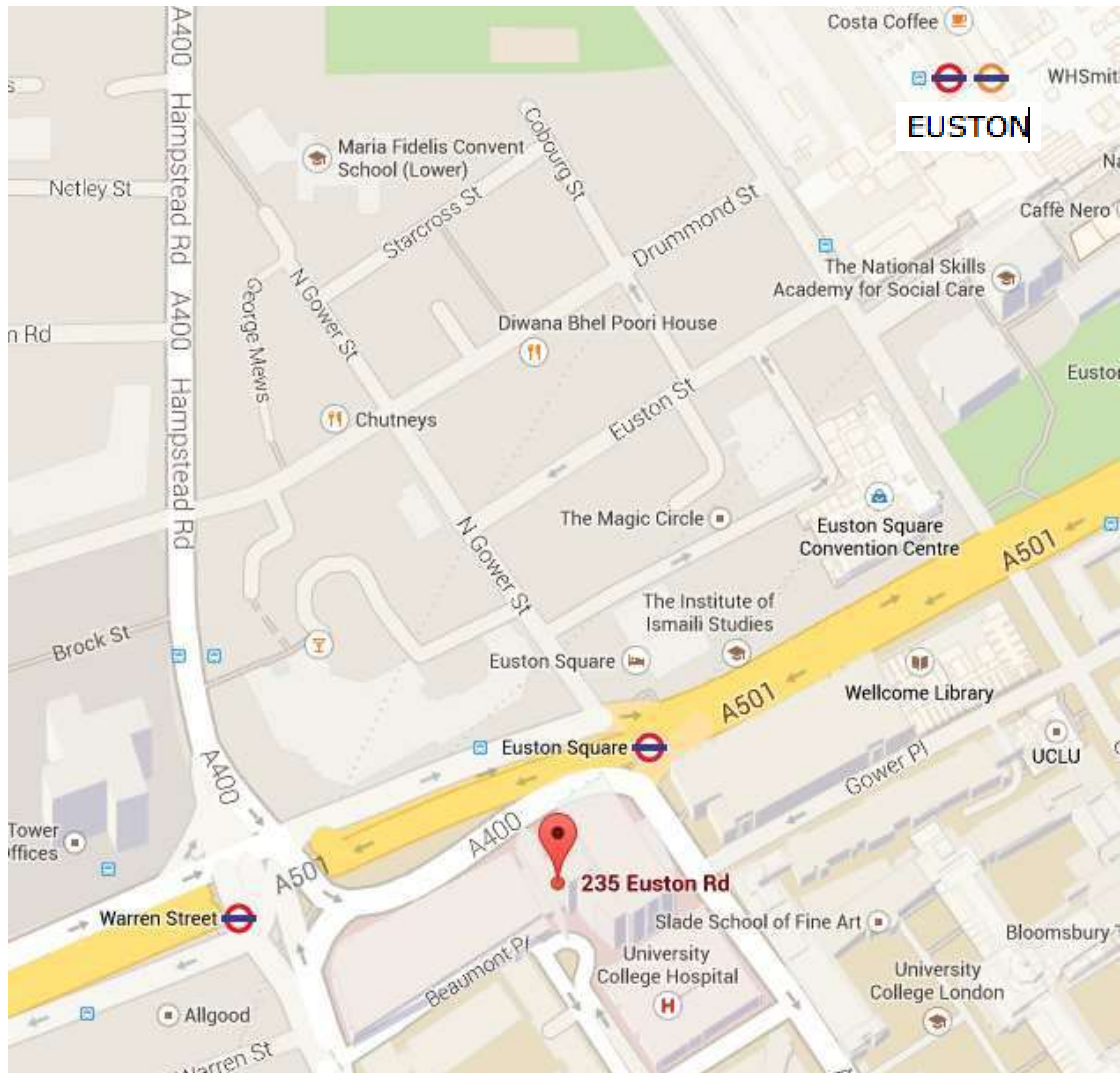

The visit will commence at 1pm and those attending are asked to report to the main entrance of the hospital, directions to which can be found below.

As this is an active and busy hospital, and to support the privacy and dignity of our patients we will restrict this visit to 10 people and places will be assigned on a 'first come, first serve' basis, so if you are interested please sign up as soon as possible.

Should you wish to find out more about this visit, please contact hannah.pugh@uclh.nhs.uk

Directions

The address for the hospital is 235 Euston Road, London, NW1 2BU

The hospital is equidistant from Warren Street and Euston Square tube stations, and 5 minutes stroll from Euston. The simplest route from The Excel Centre is to take the DLR westbound to Bank, the change onto the Northern line to Euston, though please check Transport for London before travelling.

We look forward to welcoming you on the day!
